A MUSICAL EVENT.

Mrs. Kellogg-Bachert's Concert to be Given Friday Evening, Assisted by Miss Potvin.

Arrangements are now being completed for one of the finest musical treats Lincoln ever had in the way of a song and piano recital such event being on for next Friday evening, on which occasion Mrs. Fanny Kellogg-Bachert will be heard in grand concert, assisted by Miss May Potvin on the piano, in accompaniments and piano recitals at the Masonic Temple hall. The concert would have taken place at Funke's, but owing to the fact that there were no open dates at that house next week and that other engagements of the vocalists prevented a postponement, the affair will be enjoyed none the less at the Masonic Temple.

That it will be an artistic and brilliant success there is no room to doubt, for Mrs. Bachert's national reputation as a vocalist is certainly sufficient to lay all doubts at rest. She has made several tours of the country with the most prominent musical organizations, and aside from the fact that she conducted the tours of the Fanny Kellogg-Brignoli Concert Company, she was leading vocalist with Theodore Thomas' concert, Sig. Brignoli concert, and during the former's tour of New England, rendered Faust's "Damnation Song," nine times winning laurels and scoring such great success in all the larger cities that her name has become popularly identified with the song ever since all over the east. Madam Bachert has also sung in oratorio with all the finest societies of New York, Boston, Chicago and the metropolitan cities.

Of Miss Potvin as a finished artist at the piano, we could say nothing that would add to the Lincoln public's opinion of her playing or that would be of any information, as she is too well known, her artistic manipulation of the key board having oft times received duly deserved accolades. Therefore, with such excellent material for an evening's entertainment at song and instrumental music, there can, or should not be but one other result attained, and that is a full house should turn out to show appreciation of unquestionably the best musical treat of the season. Seats will be placed on sale Monday morning at Hohman's and Currier & Their's music stores and at Harley's and Zehring & Dunn's drug stores, at the very low price of seventy-five cents.

The Elliott school building will be ready for occupancy the latter part of the coming week.

A harvest home social, given at 429 South Thirtieth street, was a splendid success in every sense of the word.

Substantial new sidewalks are being completed at the opera house and Burr block, the former of flag stone and the latter of tar.

The Lincoln Street railway now run their Seventeenth street cars from Eleventh to Sixteenth street on O, and then direct south on Sixteenth to F street.

A large number of Lincoln Elks attended the social session given Thursday evening by the Omaha lodge in honor of Nat C. Goodwin. The boys say it was a most enjoyable affair.

It will be an unusually fine treat. The piano and song recital at Masonic Temple Friday evening by Madame Kellogg-Bachert and Miss Potvin, and you certainly cannot afford to miss it.

The improvements started some time ago at the Funke and stopped by an injunction, was resumed Thursday, the court having granted Mr. Funke the right, and now the work is being completed.

Mrs. A. S. Raymond left Sunday for New York for a visit of several weeks and will meet Mr. Raymond when he arrives on American soil after his several months trip in foreign lands. Mr. and Mrs. Raymond will be at home to friends about the middle of October.

Mrs. Anna P. Pratt, formerly of 1300 G street, leaves with her family for St. Louis, Wednesday, where they will hereafter reside. She will sing in one of the churches of that city and give lessons on the piano, while her son Charlie has secured a position with a prominent architect.

Gen. J. C. McBride's new building corner of P and Twelfth streets, is one of the most attractive and finest brick business structures in the city and a credit to the locality in which it has been erected. The two store rooms contain the finest display windows and are far better lighted than any other stores in the city. They are now for rent to desirable tenants.

We are pleased to know that Mr. R. L. Rowe, formerly editor of the News and member of the News Co. firm, will remain in this city and in newspaper work. Mr. Rowe has been engaged by the Omaha Republican to take charge of its Lincoln bureau, which is located in the basement corner of the Richards block. He will also have charge of the work in southeastern Nebraska. The Republican is to be congratulated upon this selection, as Mr. Rowe is a fluent writer and a great rustler.

Invitations for the wedding of Mr. Edward E. Bennett and Miss Marcia L. Keefe have been issued. The ceremony will take place on Wednesday evening next at the First Baptist church, and a reception will be given the couple from 9 to 11 p. m. at the home of the bride, 1203 G street. The cards announce Mr. and Mrs. Bennett at home after October Twentieth, at 539 South Eleventh street.

Privateering.

The question has been asked, "Has the United States ever abandoned the right of privateering?"

No. Mr. Marcy, secretary of state in 1856, when most civilized states abolished it by the declaration of Paris, offered to have the United States join in the whole declaration if "the clause abolishing privateering were amended by adding that the private property of the subject or citizen of a belligerent on the high seas should be exempted from seizure by public armed vessels of the other belligerent, except it be contraband of war." This kind offer was declined without thanks.

Mr. Marcy's idea was that if privateering was abolished, the property of a nation maintaining a small navy would be entirely at the mercy of a nation maintaining a large navy. In 1861, when the Confederates were thinking of issuing letters of marque to privateers, Secretary Seward offered to join in the declaration, without the Marcy amendment; but the French and English governments declined this kind offer also, except on condition that it should not take effect as against the Confederate States. So as regards privateering the United States stands with the late Barbary states, not in any very enviable light.

No Publicity Wanted.

"So there was a row at your house last night, Quigley?"

"Yes, my uncle was badly hurt. But how did you hear about it? I took every precaution to have the affair kept quiet."

"What precautions did you take?"

"I engaged several detectives to work on the case."—Lincoln Journal.

HOW LOVELY WOMAN DRINKS.

While the Thirsty Hordes of Men Look on with Envy.

THE hottest day this summer two young ladies approached the ice water tank in the waiting room of the Staten Island ferry. They wanted a drink of the water. Near by stood a man who also wanted a drink of the water. He'd been out with the boys the night before, and he wanted a drink of it pretty badly.

"You drink first, Flo," said one of them.

"Oh, no, you, Bess."

"Never! Go on, Flo."

"I won't do it. Drink yourself, Bess."

There were now two men waiting.

"I think you're mean—when you know I want you to!"

"I don't care—you've got to drink first, because I won't."

"Well, then, if I must I suppose I must."

There were now four thirsty men in line waiting anxiously.

"My, but it's cold."

"Is it?"

"Awful."

"Don't drink it too fast or it'll make you sick."

"No, 'twon't. I ate three dishes of ice cream with Charlie the other night as fast as I could swallow them, and it didn't make me sick."

There were eight men waiting to get a drink now.

"It's cold, isn't it, Bess?"

"Cold as ice."

"I s'pose there's ice in it."

"Of course."

"I'm going to drink real slow."

"That's right—the boat won't be here for a long time."

Sixteen men:

"It hurts my teeth."

"Does it?"

"Yes—makes 'em ache."

"It never does mine."

"It always does mine—real hard."

"That's funny."

"It does though. Don't you want some more?"

The census was taken at this point, and thirty-two men found gazing longingly at the ice water tank.

"My, I guess I did want some more."

"Course you did, drink a whole lot."

"Don't you want some more?"

"Yes, after you get through."

"I've got enough—couldn't drink another drop."

"Oh yes, you can."

"No, I can't."

Sixty-four men reported. Those who had first fallen into line were now speechless with thirst.

"I'll just kill myself drinking so much. I know I shall."

"Oh no, you won't."

"But the horrid stuff is so awfully cold."

"That don't make any difference."

The crowd of thirsty men was now too long to count, but a careful estimate placed the number at one hundred and twenty-eight.

"Let me have just a little more."

"Why, you'll kill yourself—I never saw anybody drink ice water so in my life."

"Oh, pshaw, I haven't drunk much. You'll want some more yourself before you go."

"Don't know but what I will—just push down on that thing again, won't you?"

"Oh, here's our boat—hurry up or we'll get left!" and then the dear creatures left the tin cup swinging at the end of the chain and rushed for the gate.

Then that crowd of men fought with one another, and surged around that water cooler, and those who were not too far gone with thirst made remarks short but deep; and perhaps a quarter of them managed to get a drink before the boat started.—New York Tribune.

A Christian Spirit.

Mr. Isaacstein—I sell you dot coat, my friend, for seventeen dollar; you dake hum along!

Customer—I thought, Isaacstein, that you didn't do business on Saturday. Isn't this your Sunday?

Mr. Isaacstein (in a low, reverent tone of voice)—My friend, to sell a coat like dot for seventeen dollar was not peesness, dot was charity.—Time.

No Excuse for Him.

Leader of Lynching Party—Now, young man, make a full confession or up you go.

Prisoner—I was fooling with a gun. I pointed it at my brother, and—

"You didn't know it was loaded?"

"No."

"Men, pull on the rope and let him swing."—Lincoln Journal.

Consolation.

Invalid—I have been here at these springs, doctor, six weeks, and I don't see that the water has had the slightest effect.

Dr. Candid—You must have patience. There was a man here last season who didn't die until after he had been here two months.

—Texas Siftings.

His Chief Suffering.

Old Gentleman (to tramp)—I suppose, my friend, that in the nomadic life you lead there are a great many drawbacks!

Tramp (bitterly)—Yes, sir; there are some drawbacks, of course, but I suffer more from "move on."—Time.

A Bright Prospect.

Weinstein—Sandmeyer, I vos in luck. Sandmeyer—How vos dot, Ikey?

Weinstein—I haf bin accepted by Guggenheimer's widow! Mose Guggenheimer vos just my size, and you know vot a wardrobe dot feller had, Yakey.—Time.

An Indian Sioux.

We understand the Sioux will require a floux more days' consideration of the treaty before they can make up their minds definitely as to what they will diox. Whioox!

—Rochester Post-Express.

A Score.

Hard Up Gent—Say, boss, can't yer give a feller a few cents to help him along?

Mr. Delawney—Why don't you do something faw yaw own livin'? You had bettah ask for bawls instead of money.

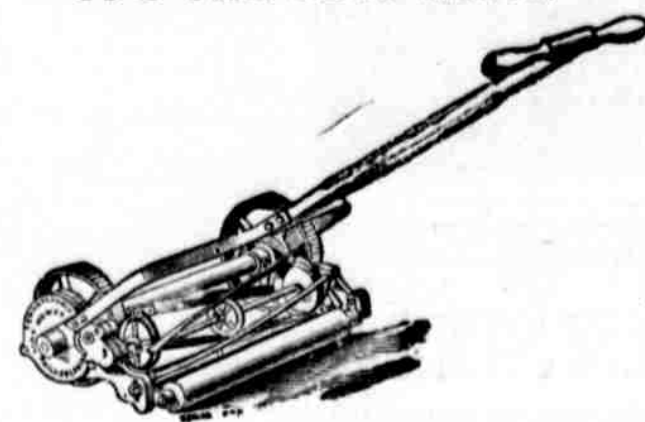

Hard Up Gent—Well, boss, I asked yer for what I thought yer had the most of.—Life.
